- (a) Rate per 1,000 of mean population.
- (b) Population estimates for periods subsequent to the Census of 30th June, 1961, represent the population ascertained at the census plus natural increase and recorded net migration since that date. As complete records of interstate migration are not available the estimated population since 30th June, 1961, is approximate.
- (c) Includes natural increase and net migration. See also note (b).
- (d) Hobart and Suburbs.
- (e) Equivalent annual rates; based on too few events to warrant calculation to second place of decimals.

(a) Up to and including 1958 average rainfall for each year (represented by 100) is the average over the period 1911–1942. As from 1st January, 1959 a long period average from a selection of representative stations is used.

SEASONAL CONDITIONS, TASMANIA: MAY, 1966

Rainfall: During May, 1966, below normal falls were recorded in all districts, except the West Coast (130 % of normal) and Derwent Valley (103%). Negative departures of over 50% were registered in the East Coast and Midlands districts, where in some areas falls were less than one inch. In the King Island, Flinders Island and Northern districts, falls were more than 30% below normal. Cumulative totals for the year were very low in the Northern (68% of normal) and East Coast (77%) districts, but in the Derwent Valley, totals were almost 8% above normal.

Temperature: Mean temperature recordings during the month were above normal over the greater part of the State, but departures were below normal in all coastal regions except the north-west tip and the south-east. Inland departures reached a maximum of nearly one degree above normal on the Central Plateau.

Rural Conditions: Growth in "closed" pasture areas and well-established forage crops in all districts, and in grazed pasture areas in the South continued good up to the heavy frosts of the third week, but in the North, grazed pasture areas showed little sign of recovery. Sowings of the main cereal crops continued through the month. Most early-lambing flocks have reported above-average percentages, but total monthly production of milk for seasonal herds ending lactation during the month was well below that for the same period last year. Harvesting of fruit continued rapidly in favourable conditions, and exports of apples and pears have exceeded predictions.
